Did you enjoy the story?
How did it make you FEEL?

Reading Menu Week 10.

Try to complete some of these tasks whilst at home.
You can also make up a new task of your own to share with the class when we return to school.

This week there have been many demonstrations and protests because lots of people feel that there are not equal rights for people of colour. It is important that we realise that although in our school, everyone is treated equally, this is not the same for everybody all over the world.

Click on the link below and find out about a significant (important) man from history called Dr Martin Luther King. Discover how he fought for equal rights for everybody. This is still something we must continue to focus on to make the future fairer and a better place to live for all of us.

ie

your list can be real and silly words

Look at the picture from 'The Ravenous Beast' story.

Make a list of all the phonics sounds that you can see.

Which one was used the most?

Make a list of all the different coloured owls.

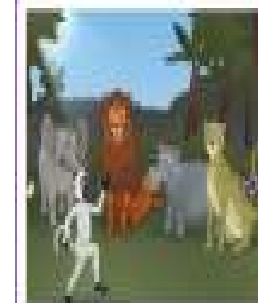

Give the owl a name to match their colour eg -

Gorgeous green owl.

When you have written your list underline all the phonic sounds you find in their names.

Visit Purple Mash (click link below) and read about Henry the remarkable elephant. Read Chapter 1 then take the quiz and see how many you get correct? Choose one other activity. If you enjoyed it read through Chapter 2 and select a different activity!

Henry the Elephant

Henry the elephant has a remarkable talent - he can paint! But what was he painting when a team of loggers arrive threatening to destroy the jungle animals?

"I AM

THE HUNGRIEST
ANIMAL OF ALL,"

said the Ravenous Beast.

"I'm hungry, hungry, hungry!

I'm so hungry I could eat

the big yellow house on the hill.

Gobble it up! Swallow it down!

Now THAT'S what I call hungry!"

So the little white owl swung on a branch with his little teddy
And he munched his treat and shared a happy story

"Aaahhhhh . . ." breathed the blue owl dreamily when the little white owl had finished.
The other owls all glared at her.
"Ooops. SORRY!" she blushed.
"But couldn't we have just one more
